

Jenna Walter is currently a full time undergraduate student at Montclair State University and a Master Teacher at Linda D'Amico's Academy of Dance. She took her first ballet class at two years old and has since spent 9 years on LDAD's competition team, attended Morris County School of Technology for the Visual Academy of Performing Arts: Dance, choreographed numerous showcase and competition pieces, and substituted/assistant taught classes at LDAD from 2017-2022. Now, she teaches children ages 2-12 in various genres and styles on her own. Jenna is also a member of the Montclair State Dance Team and is looking forward to continue her artistry as a performer, teacher, and choreographer.